DEM. NATIONAL CONVENTION IS NOW IN SESSION

OPENED AT SAN FRANCISCO AT 12 O'CLOCK—CUMMINGS TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

CHAIRMAN CUMMINGS DELIVERED KEYNOTE SPEECH LAVISHING PRAISE ON ADMINISTRATION HUGH BAILLIE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

San Francisco, June 28—The democratic national convention, sitting in secret session late Saturday, returned a double victory for the administration by deciding in its favor the contests for convention seats from Georgia and Missouri.

Rev. Patrick Ryan offered the invocation, at the close of which the entire assemblage joined in the Lord's prayer.

Kremer delivered his opening speech followed by the reading of the official call of the convention.

He was applauded frequently as he denounced the republican party and its platform. When he lauded President Wilson the crowd cheered wildly for seventeen minutes. A huge painting of President Wilson was unfurled. All the state delegations paraded around it.

By the recommendation of the national committee, Chairman Homer Cummings of the national committee, was named temporary chairman of the convention and began his keynote speech.

He was still speaking at 1:55 P. M., Pacific coast time.

Auditorium, San Francisco, June 28—A brass band swung into Sousa marches startling the quietness of the San Francisco church-like audience giving the opening session of the democratic national convention its first impulse of life today.

Blue and gray was draped from the dome to the pipe organ over the stage.

There was a contrast to the sweltering jam at the Chicago republican convention where hours before the convention opened delegates and spectators were trying to get into the auditorium. An hour before the opening time only two or three hundred had found their seats. They talked in subdued tones while pretty girl ushers tried to make them comfortable.

Hunting in national colors and a few American flags were the sole variations from the blue and gray color schemes of the auditorium. Aerial nests had been provided for two hands, one on each side of the pipe organ. Rolled tight and fastened above the speaker's seat was an American flag. The huge emblem was in place for a novel opening ceremony, the presentation of the colors by the United States Marines.

There was a noted lack of confusion outside of the auditorium.

Women pickets paraded in front of the auditorium with placards urging general amnesty for political prisoners.

It was reported that a resolution was to be introduced congratulating President Wilson on his return to health. Reports ran around among gossiping delegates many of whom seemed to think the first session would be turned into a testimonial meeting for Wilson.

The Palmerites became increasingly noisy and started a little Palmer demonstration. There was applause by the gallery. Palmer pennants were waved.

Before the opening a detachment of American Marines appeared on the rostrum. There were two trumpeters, two color guards and color bearers.

Stands were set on the floor with flags in the sockets handy for snatching out when the proper time comes for parading.

For the purpose of taking pictures a blinding white search light was turned on the crowd from the balcony and caused a little excitement. The people had to shut their eyes or turn their backs. The crowd broke into the first yells when the band featuring "Dixie" broke into southern airs.

Considerable hilarity was caused by the appearance of a toy balloon in the Rhode Island section. This was such a success that another one was produced and tossed around the floor. The delegates seemed to take great delight in it.

At 11:40 the floor had begun to look like a mass of humanity.

The arrival of Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, on the floor, was marked by a lot of yells by the Indiana delega-

Gons. At 12:10, ten minutes after schedule time for opening of the convention, the temporary officials had not appeared on the platform. The stage was set however. The floor was jammed though the galleries were still not half full. On the rostrum the U. S. Marine guard of five men were waiting patiently to perform their part of the opening ceremony.

The Palmer cheer leaders again started something. A few groups of delegates were singing some lauditorious of their candidates to the tune of popular airs.

KNUTSON TO WORK ON COAL MATTER

SIXTH DISTRICT CONGRESSMAN GOING TO WASHINGTON TO URGE IMMEDIATE ACTION

St. Cloud, June 28—Congressman Harold Knutson will leave Monday for Washington for the purpose of taking up with the government there the matter of immediate relief in the coal situation.

"Lake steamers are arriving at the docks at Duluth and Superior every day empty," said Congressman Knutson, "being unable to secure coal cargoes which are so badly needed now in the northwest to replenish the exhausted stores for next winter. Unless immediate relief is secured there is every indication that a very serious situation will result."

When Swallows Fly Low.

It is a sign of rain when swallows fly low. When the atmosphere gets saturated with moisture all insects make for shelter and come to earth. As the swallow hawks for insects on the wing it naturally flies low in search of its prey.

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED IN PLANE AND AUTO CLASHES

FRANK COGSWELL AND DAUGHTER OF MINNEAPOLIS, ARE AMONG THE DEAD

Tacoma, Wash. June 28—Frank C. Cogswell of Minneapolis and his daughter Dorothy, 5, were killed Sunday afternoon at Lakeview, Wash., near here, when an airplane in which they were passengers, plunged into a sand bank.

Huntington, Ind., June 28—Ten persons were killed and nine injured, probably fatally, when a truck carrying a load of picnickers was struck by a passenger train one mile west of here Sunday. The injured were taken to an Evansville hospital. The truck, which was carrying 21 persons to an outing being held by the local order of the Woodmen of the World, stopped on the tracks and was struck by the train which was traveling at a high rate of speed. Several children were among those killed or injured.

The special train which brought the injured to Evansville was held up by a freight wreck at Oakland City and did not arrive until several hours after the accident.

POLES SMASH BOLSHIEVIKI AND SLAUGHTER 2000

HEAVY FIGHTING FOR SEVERAL DAYS RESULTS IN DEFEAT AND DISLODGE OF TROTSKY FORCES

Warsaw, June 28—Fierce fighting is proceeding along the entire Polish front and increasing in intensity, according to Sunday's Polish official communication.

The Bolsheviki, profiting by numerical superiority and great masses of cavalry, are seeking decisive results at all costs. It is stated. The heavy fighting for several days in the region of Lake Mennusel ended with the defeat of the Bolsheviki, who were dislodged from their positions.

The enemy's resistance has been broken all along the line between the Pripiet and the Ryzeray-Kalenkowicz railroad, where the Bolsheviki lost 2000 men killed.

The Poles captured quantities of important war material.

The Modern Mrs. Malaprop.

A Washington newspaper correspondent tells of a Mrs. Malaprop who once amused the capital with her mistakes. She went around asking people to sign a "red robin" (meaning a round robin); spoke of her trip through the "Valley of Gethsemane" when she meant the Yosemite; and said, "I've been in the mountains, and do you know, I jumped from rock to rock just like a shamrock?"—From the Outlook.

Greenland Source of Icebergs.

The source of practically all the icebergs of the arctic and sub-arctic regions is Greenland. Owing to the northward set of the West Greenland current the bergs of this side are carried first to the north and it is only at about the seventy-fourth or seventy-fifth parallel of latitude that they begin to make their way westward to come down on the American side.

90,000 GALLONS CF WINE WRECKED; TOWN ON "SPREE"

BUCKET BRIGADES SALVAGE THE FLOWING PORT IN PAILS AND WASHTUBS

Defiance, Iowa, June 27—This town is nursing a violent headache as the result of a two-days "spree." The liquor lid was blown sky-high when a train wreck broke open two tank cars, each car containing 90,000 gallons of port wine, which was being shipped through here under government supervision.

The ensuing orgie made the Armistice day celebration look like a church social. Never within the memory of the oldest inhabitant have all the residents of Defiance worked together with such unanimity of spirit and zeal as they displayed in clearing away the debris of this wreck in order that traffic on the railroad might not be delayed.

It was 15 minutes after the wreck that all the stores in town had sold every bucket they had in stock. Pails, milk cans and even washtubs were pressed into service. A line almost as long as a circus parade extended along Main street and down the railroad track. Women and children formed part of the bucket brigade. Enterprising speculators offered to sell buckets for $1 apiece.

By nightfall the crowd was dense around the tank cars, which still contained several thousand gallons. Automobile parties from nearby towns came flocking in. Among those who looked upon the wine while it was red were said to have been several pillars of the church, but as to this the oldest inhabitant was not certain, for darkness and the wild scramble made positive identification impossible.

That the wine had all the "authority" of the pre-prohibition variety was evidenced by the noise—some hilarity and jubilation which lasted through the next day and into the following night. No arrests will be made, says the constable.

(By United Press)

St. Paul, June 28—No call for a conference of state executives of the northwest was issued by Governor Burnquist today, who spent the day assisting movers with household goods. The governor today changed his residence.

It is expected that he will call a meeting for early this week.

J. BRUCE KREMER

New photograph of J. Bruce Kremer of Butte, Mont., first vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, who will call the Democratic convention to order at San Francisco on June 28. Mr. Kremer was selected for two reasons—first, because Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the committee, has been designated as temporary chairman of the convention, and second because it was thought fitting that Mr. Kremer, a westerner, should open the first great national political convention ever held west of the Rocky mountains.

3 BANDITS BLOW FARMER'S SAFE

TRIO BINDS MAN AND WIFE TO CHAIRS AND ESCAPE IN AUTO

Blue Earth, June 28—Three bandits Saturday night blew the safe in the farm home of August Scholes near here and got away with $8,000.

The trio drove to the barnyard, asked for drinking water. Returning from the well they covered the farmer with a gun, and forced him into the house, where they bound him to a chair, fastening his hands and feet. Then they bound his wife. They went into a bedroom where Scholes had an iron safe. The safe was blown open by means of nitro glycerin and $8,000 in currency and securities extracted. The men then drove away.

SENATOR REED, FOE OF WILSON, LOSES POST AS DELEGATE

DEFEATED OPPONENT OF LEAGUE THREATENS FIGHT ON FLOOR OF CONVENTION

BRYAN *HOSEN FOR RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE—PENNSYLVANIA VOTES AGAINST WETS

San Francisco, June 28—The democratic national committee, sitting in secret session late Saturday, returned a double victory for the administration by deciding in its favor the contests for convention seats from Georgia and Missouri.

By action of the committee, Senator James Reed of Missouri bitter opponent of President Wilson and the League of Nations, was denied the right to act as a delegate from the fifth Missouri congressional district. The vote was 34 to 12.

The delegation pledged to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, who ran in the state primary on a pro-administration platform, was given Georgia's 28 seats. The committee voted unanimously to reject the counter claims of the contesting anti-administration delegates, who were selected at the state convention, under the leadership of Senator Hoke Smith and Thomas E. Watson, former congressman.

Reed Says He'll Appeal

After the committee voted on the Reed case, Homer S. Cummings, national chairman ruled that his alternate James T. Bradshaw of Kansas City, be given the contested seat in the fifth district. Reed announced that he would appeal to the credentials committee to be put on the permanent roll of the convention if the national committee kept him off the temporary roll, and that if he were turned down by the credentials committee he would carry his fight to the convention floor.

Reed asserted the refusal of a seat for him "can be taken as nothing more nor less than an effort to exclude from the councils of the party a man whose democracy is unchallenged—solely on the ground that in the United States senate acting under his oath of office, he opposed the League of Nations."

"The unfortunate part of it is," he added, "that if the impression gets abroad that men ought to be excluded from participation in the democratic councils because they are not for the League of Nations, as Mr. Wilson delivered it, then a larger percentage of the democratic party throughout the nation may feel that they are in like manner to be excluded."

Pennsylvania Dries Win

Pennsylvania dries won a smashing victory in the state convention caucus Saturday, defeating effort to instruct for a wet plank by a vote of 60 to 13.

William J. Bryan late Saturday was unanimously selected as Nebraska's representative on the committee on resolutions at a caucus of the Nebraska delegation. Several members of the delegation representing the Hitchcock faction did not attend the caucus which also chose former Congressman Dan V. Stephens as chairman and former Governor Shellenberger as vice-chairman of the delegation.

White Handkerchief

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

They had called the four hornlike piles of rock that arose like a stupendous monument over two thousand feet in the air "The White Handkerchief." Seen from a distance the prospect was that of a perfectly white, perfectly square handkerchief.

Nature had been lavish in the bestowal of her rarest beauties and all save the spirit of man seemed divine. It was the roughest section of a sparsely settled country where the law had failed to drive out feudism, moonshining and organized banditti.

At Center Hollow Wanda Brookes realized how potent and cruel was the fate that had placed her at fifteen in the charge of a distant relative, Mort Zander. Her father had died amid utter poverty and had looked to Zander to care for his only child. Grudgingly the man who lived by outlawry took the girl into his household. He had crushed all of hope or contentment out of his sullen-souled slave of a wife, and she had no affection to bestow upon the lonely girl. The hardest tasks were awarded to Wanda. She was surrounded by the sinister faced, evil-minded men who appeared from time to time bringing stolen live stock or the booty of outright highway robbery and from whom she hid in terror.

There was one man among them who, after the first time his eyes fell upon Wanda, sought to gain her confidence and favor. He was Earl Dawson, apparently one of the most valued of the thieving acolytes of Zander, for he never returned from his raids without boastfully displaying their proceeds to his well satisfied employer. Wanda shrank from him and her heart sank when one day Mrs. Zander remarked casually:

"That Dawson fellow seems to have eyes only for you, Wanda. According to pop you're sure of a good home and a man who knows how to provide for it."

"Why, what do you mean?" questioned Wanda, half surmising and shuddering.

"You can guess," was the casual reply, "and don't be foolish. Anything is better than the lonely slave life you live with us. I'll give you a word of warning, too. That young school teacher, Raymond Thorne, over at Cross Corners, has been seen shining around you. Don't encourage him. He's spotted."

"You—you don't mean that your husband or his men would do Mr. Thorne any harm?" quavered Wanda.

"If he stands in the way of Dawson, yes," was the definite response. "They got him let out from the school and he had better find another place right away."

Wanda managed to get away from the house about dusk and steal to the village. They had been simply friends, Thorne and herself, but their meeting that evening eventuated in a closer companionship. He told her of his love and asked her to leave her wretched home and become his wife.

"It will have to be a fast and furious ride on horseback for over fifty miles to successfully evade the pursuers, who will surely be sent on your trail when you are missed," said Thorne. "Once at my mother's home at Alandale we will be safe and you, as my wedded wife within that hour, can safely defy Mort Zander. I will have to make preparations that must not fail. I am going to give you a fieldglass. After I have left here I will not dare to return nearer than the White Handkerchief. Next Thursday night about ten o'clock keep the glass focussed on the middle rocky cone of the plateau. You will see a light signal."

Thursday was a busy day for Wanda, the evening hours replete with suspense. In the kitchen all day long she had been assisting Mrs. Zander in making catsup. The latter had retired, but Wanda refused to put things in order. In the next room Zander and his favorite aids were engaged in revelry. About nine o'clock Dawson put in an appearance.

Twice Wanda heard her name mentioned and glasses clinked as if in consonance with some toast given. The kitchen clock struck ten. She ran outside and focussed the night glass on the White Handkerchief. A blotch of dark color, a human figure and then a quick glow showed.

"Co-me." In quick succession against the light appeared the welcome letters. Later Wanda knew that her ingenious lover had devised a frame and transparent alphabet screen plainly visible through the powerful lenses with which he had provided her.

Wanda hurried back to the kitchen and threw a shawl over her head and shoulders. At that moment Dawson staggered into the room.

"You're wanted in yonder, sweet," he murmured. "We are to plight our troth before father Zander, hey?"

The wretch made a dash to seize her. Instantly Wanda snatched up a snuffer filled with cayenne pepper, an adjunct of the catsup making. Straight into his eyes she dashed the fiery stuff. There was a frightful yell.

Kloppetty klop—kloppetty klop! Once in the saddle of the waiting horse Wanda made the rocky road echo with the thundering hoofs. A tortuous winding through a thicket, the rapid ascent of the White Handkerchief, and an hour later, keeping pace with the charger Raymond Thorne rode, Wanda was on her way to freedom, home, mother and—love.

SWEDISH COMEDIAN

His Popular Company Will Play on Wednesday, July 7, at the Gardner Auditorium

Olle i Skratthult makes them laugh. He and his company of eight will be at Gardner auditorium on Wednesday evening, July 7, at 8 o'clock. Following the entertainment there will be a dance at 10:30 o'clock, with music furnished by the accordion players and a piano professor.

The Jamestown, N. D., Daily News of March 19 has this splendid comment on Olle i Skratthult:

"For a number of years, the periodic visit of Hjalmar Peterson 'Olle i Skratthult,' and his company have been making Jamestown people laugh and forget their daily troubles, and when he filled the Eagle Temple to capacity last night he abundantly made good his reputation as a laugh maker.

"Olle i Skratthult"

Made up as a Swedish farmer, his comedy was irrepressible. But he was not all, for the other members of the company of eight helped round out a splendid entertainment. The program included Swedish songs and folk dances in addition to the inimitable "Olle i Skratthult." Dancing until midnight followed the entertainment.

WEDDED IN MONTANA

Miss Mildred Honnold and R. J. Ise, Newlyweds, Visit Relatives in Brainerd

(From Joliet, Montana, Paper) Rumor became fact when word was received here Friday that the marriage of Mildred Honnold and R. J. Ise had taken place the previous day in Billings.

The ceremony was performed at St. Luke's Episcopal church parsonage by Reverend J. P. Anshutz, rector, on Thursday, May 20, at 6 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Ise left shortly after for Cody, Wyo., to remain there about two weeks attending to school and business matters preparatory to their return in September. From Cody they intend to go to Brainerd, Minn., the home of Mr. Ise, and spend their vacation at one of the many lakes in that vicinity. The fall will see them back in Cody, where Mr. Ise will take up his work as superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Ise is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Honnold of this city and has taught in the local schools for several years past. Mr. Ise came here in the latter part of the 1919 term, succeeding Lincoln Valentine. He was re-elected for the term which has just successfully closed, and now seeks a larger field of endeavor. His administration of our school was efficient and he had the good will and co-operation of his staff to such an extent that better work has never been accomplished here.

The Birmingham club has secured Meeks, young outfielder from Louisville. His name is so much like that of Harry Meeks of famous memory that the Birmingham fans are expecting him to be a great swatter.

Whenever a baseball magnate has reached the limit and thinks he can reach the fans' patience a little bit longer, he gives out notice to the press that he's thinking of signing Nap Lajoie or Hans Wagner. Fools nobody, however.

These are the days when the active little fellows more and more win favor as catchers in the major leagues. Not a club that has a big, lumbering backstop that wouldn't trade him for a Schalk, a Root, an O'Neill or a Walters or a Perkins.

"Woman in Black" Who Will Tell All She Knows About Elwell Murder

Miss Elly Hope Anderson

Hundreds of clues have been followed up by the New York police and the District Attorney since Joseph B. Elwell, card expert and turfman, was mysteriously murdered. This snapshot of Miss Elly Hope Anderson, "the woman in black," was made recently in Minneapolis. She has announced that she is ready to go to New York and tell all she knows about the Elwell case.

The Waitress' Revenge

This girl doesn't pretend to be in the statesmanship class. But she showed a telephone manager a thing or two in simple justice.

She had occasion to do some long distance telephoning from Stillwater, Minn., where she is a waitress in a restaurant. She did not get the party with whom she wished to talk. Nevertheless she had to pay for the message under the Burlesonian station-to-station, person-to-person system.

A day or two later the manager of the telephone company at Stillwater, to whom she had protested in vain for charging her merely for "the report" that the party she wished to talk to was not available for conversation, was waited on by the waitress. Among other things he ordered a piece of cherry pie. He was advised that the larder was innocent of cherry pie at that time. As he came up to the cashier he noted on his check that the pie was charged to him just the same.

He protested somewhat violently—just how violently one may imagine by picturing himself in his place. But the waitress was there with the quick reply that the charge was for "the report" that there was no cherry pie to be had.

This pie story ought to travel the length and breadth of the land. The charge the waitress made was exactly as legitimate as the charge she had been compelled to pay.—Sioux Falls Press.

TOM LEONARD, former long distance running champion, has applied to the Canadian soldiers' settlement board for a grant of land to take up farming.

Owner Ebbehts of the Dodgers is thinking of striking off medals commemorating those 58 innings of baseball played by his team in three days.

Mr. Dode P. Paskert, the rejuvenated gardener, continues to grab off his daily base hits. The sun is shining brightly for the veteran, and each afternoon is perfect.

Fred Toney is custodian of the Texan wildcat, the Giants' mascot. Toney has a trained bear at his home in Tennessee, and McGraw thinks he is qualified to tame the wildcat.

Joe Harris, the first sucker, so badly needed by the Indians to help the veteran Doc Johnston take care of the initial bag, is with the Franklin team in the Pennsylvania Steel league.

Several major league clubs are keeping scouts on the trail of Ernie Koob and it looks like the southpaw will return to the majors. He recently hurled a no-hit game against Kansas City.

Mike McNally is going so good that Barrow apparently does not dare to disturb the present arrangement of his infield, even with such another brilliant performer as Oscar Vitt available.

GIRL PLEADS TO DIE, KILLS HER

Youth's Confession Clears Up Mysterious Murder in Michigan.

KISSES HIM GOOD-BY

Boy Tells Weird Story of Chance Acquaintance Pleading for Death and How He Choked Her With Handkerchief.

Pontiac, Mich.—The murder by strangulation of twenty-year-old Vera Schneider, telephone operator, was solved by a confession of Anson Best, twenty-one years old, of Flint, who under a grilling by Prosecutor Gillespie admitted the murder.

The confession was a weird affair. Best asserting the girl, with whom he said he had struck up an acquaintance in the street, declared she was tired of living and forced him to strangle her with his handkerchiefs despite his protest.

Miss Schneider's body was found on the porch of a partially constructed house. There were signs of a severe struggle, but the girl had not been criminally attacked.

Here is the Confession.

Following is Best's confession: "Vera Schneider spoke to me and I spoke and we turned right around and she started to talk to me," Best said. "She wanted to go downtown and I got to talking to her, and I told her my name and asked her name and I asked her how she came to speak to a strange fellow.

"She seemed to be discouraged over something and I told her it was no use feeling that way about it, so we walked down Saginaw street and crossed the street and after we crossed the railroad track, we crossed the street back and went down Auburn street until we came to this house.

"We stopped on the sidewalk and she threw both arms around my neck and kissed me and we sat there and talked a little while.

"She was discouraged over something, but wouldn't say what it was; she wouldn't tell me, and finally she asked me if I would kill her. She said she wanted to die and I told her it was no use feeling that way because other people in the world didn't think that way.

"She asked me if I had a handkerchief or something, that she wanted me to choke her to death.

"I kept refusing and finally she asked me to and I took the handkerchief

Then She Kind of Kicked.

and tied the knot around her neck. It didn't choke her or anything, but just was tight or lay loose. And I told her that she didn't want to be choked; she didn't want to die.

Kisses Him Good-By.

"She said she did; she wanted me to do it, and she threw both arms around my neck and kissed me and said good-by. She wanted me to pull the handkerchiefs tight, and so I took hold of them and pulled them tight.

"She didn't kick any at first at all, then she kind of kicked—just her feet a little and it was only a few minutes after that that I went across from the edge of the porch to the sidewalk and down to the creek and washed my hands, and an officer stopped me, and I stood around there until the body was taken down in the ambulance and then I went down and got a sandwich and a glass of milk and went on home."

Officials discredit the youth's story. They believe Best sought to overpower the girl, fought with her, and finally placed the knotted handkerchiefs about her throat.

"Kick" in Mule Feed.

Cynthiana, Ky.—Though many brands of liquor have originated in this county it has been dry here recently until three young men snuffed the fumes of a certain brand of "horse and mule" feed. They boiled some, adding a little water, and then sampled it. For four days they knew no more.

"Blue" Law Is Beaten.

Huntington, W. Va.—William Brown, charged with clearing land on Sunday in violation of the state's "blue" laws, was found not guilty. Brown testified that he was cutting down trees for firewood, and this coming under the head of necessities, he was freed.

Yes sir

This man knew what he was talking about, too.

He'd smoked every kind of a cigarette in his time—knew all there was to know about them.

He tried Spurs. Smoked one slow and thoughtful-like. Rolled the smoke around his tongue—tasted it. Whiffed the aroma. Let them both linger. Did it again.

"They've Got Something," said he.

And that's what a lot of smokers are saying, while Spurs' sales fairly leap.

That "something" is hard to describe. You've got to know it by test, not language. But tie to this one big fact anyhow: In

THE OPEN AIR FORUM

The open-air meeting in the public square or the city park is deserving of a general revival, as one of the good influences which will help to interest the public in national and civic matters, and to counteract the disturbing forces which tend to drive people apart in these days, and breed disorder.

All the great issues at stake in the coming election can be presented at such meetings, and discussed freely, and the entire voting body, irrespective of party politics, can vote more wisely and intelligently as a result. Local matters can be taken up; the best way to handle the coal situation, the sugar problem, and the most efficient methods for bringing producer and consumer of foodstuffs into direct and economical contact. School questions can be brought to the attention of the fathers and mothers and citizens generally, in a way that few other gatherings permit for people will attend an open-air meeting who never so much as read the accounts of more formal procedure. Speakers qualified to address the public on various topics can bring a whole population to a better understanding of foreign affairs. The band concert and the community singing will help to increase the enthusiasm and interest. America needs this sort of old-fashioned, wholesome get-together meeting. Every agency which fosters civic interest and unity of purpose helps to bring better and more settled conditions.

JESSE WINTERS MAY BLOSSOM INTO STAR

Manager McGraw Is Convinced That Recruit Has Ability.

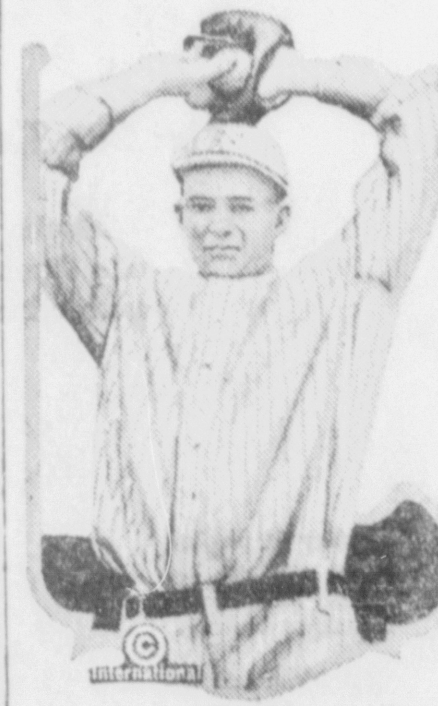

Twirler Possesses Rare Assortment of Curves but Lacks Control, That Which Is Absolutely Necessary to Pitcher.

The case of Jesse Winters, now clinging precariously to a berth with the Giants, is in some respects strangely reminiscent of the case of Ferdinand Stubblefield Schupp. Both came to the Giants as green as any bushers a big league ball club ever knew.

Both had a world of stuff from the start and soon took the fancy of John McGraw. Schupp warmed the bench for three years and then blossomed out as a star. Winters isn't a star yet, but he has warmed the bench for one full season and has started another with the Giants. He, too, may come through in time.

When Winters appeared in a Giant camp it was at Marlin in the spring of 1918. McGraw branded him as the best looking kid pitcher he had ever gazed upon. Small wonder that the Giant leader appraised the youngster so highly, for he has a world of stuff. He lacks, however, that which is absolutely essential to a good pitcher—control.

Lack of control, it will be remembered, was what kept Schupp in the dugout for three years. The Louisiana kid finally acquired the ability to whip the pellet over the plate when he wanted to or to cut the corners if he so desired, so there may be hope for Winters.

McGraw retains much of his old faith in Winters and has been very patient with him, despite some ecstatic criticisms of his judgment in the matter. The Giant leader was severely punished for holding Schupp, too, but Schupp finally vindicated him; perhaps Winters will do the same.

WILLIE KAMM LEARNS FAST

Barney Dreyfuss Offers $10,000 Worth of Players for San Francisco Prize Package.

Is it possible for a ball player to improve 100 per cent? Critics out on the coast are saying Willie Kamm, third baseman of the Seals, has improved that much over his showing in 1919. Barney Dreyfuss has offered $10,000 worth of players for an option on the prize package.

A Fair Penitent

By SAIDEE E. BALCOM

"A model young man, brainy, kind to everybody, makes friends wherever he goes," spoke Amos Purvin heartily. "Alas! too many," silently decided Rita Dwight, his niece.

Newspaper writer and author, Wilfred Dayton had done some brilliant things in a literary way. Socially he was recognized as the life of a group where young spirits needed an inspiration and a leader. Rita had met him half a dozen times and on each occasion experienced a growing preference for him. That he was attracted by her words and activities plainly showed. The demand upon his time and attention by other fair damsels, however, was viewed disconsolately by pretty Rita.

There was a lawn party at her uncle's home, where two young ladies who were relatives of a leading member of the set were particularly singled out by Dayton for marked attentions. His assiduity in giving them a good time had quite made Rita uncomfortable, almost cross, and she had drawn aside from the merry laughing group to a secluded garden covert. Dayton passed by with a gentleman friend.

"I say Dayton," observed the latter, "which of the two new beauties has made an impression on you, for both seemed to positively charm you."

"Mistake," retorted Dayton lightly. "It was my part to see that, being strangers, they must never chide us for inhospitality. My interest in the direction of a real attachment was centered weeks ago."

Suddenly the sun seemed to shine its brightest and Rita's clouded face grew serene. Weeks ago? That tallied with their acquaintance. Could he be alluding to her?

After that, Rita returned to the others and scattered her bright smiles promiscuously, but awarded the fondest ones to Dayton, who basked in the sunlight of her favor and was glad. His handclasp was a trifle more intense than usual when he bade her goodnight. Going into the house Rita found her brother Herbert, aged ten, curled up in a chair in the library engrossed in devouring some typewritten pages. By his side on the floor was a portfolio, open.

"Why, Herbert! what are you ever about?" she challenged him.

"But Mr. Dayton may not like that," reprimanded Rita. "You do not wish to be bold and intrusive, do you?"

Reluctantly she had surrendered the sacred he had appropriated and went grumblingly from the room. In replacing the papers Rita dropped the portfolio and its contents poured forth. Four photographs caused her eyes to dilate. They were counterfeited representations of as many especially lovely young ladies. She seemed to cease breathing as a packet of perfumed notes met her gaze. They were addressed to "My Darling Boy," or "Sweet Honey," or "My Beloved," and signed "Your Kitten, Fay," "Only One, Dolly," "Your Truest and Fondlest Mabel." Each note was a gushingly irrational mixture of love terms.

"Like all of them, but who can blame him, he is so attractive and handsome," half sobbed Rita. "A confirmed flirt. Oh, how I have overestimated him, but—"

The dainty pink fingers tore at a ribbon as if their owner was lacerating the susceptible hearts of Fay, and Dolly, and Mabel. Then a sense of womanly power influenced Rita to decide upon a desperate course of action so far as Wilfred Dayton was concerned. He should suffer, indeed, for causing her this heart-wreck!

For a week after that her close friends were amazed at a new reckless boldness that Rita displayed. She turned fun and frolic into an apparent quest for human hearts to fascinate. She flirted outrageously always when Dayton was present, and he began to look hurt and serious, and then failed to put in an appearance at functions where Rita was present.

She sent the portfolio to his address by a messenger, unaccompanied by any note of explanation. She herself retired from social festivities. She had lost the only man she loved and was wretched and heartbroken.

One day she had a visitor whose appearance, for she was the sister of Dayton, reopened the wound that had caused Rita so much pain.

"Wilfred is ill," said Miss Dayton soberly, "and I think your coldness towards him has something to do with it. Have you had any misunderstanding?"

Rita was ready for tears and they came. She could not help but unburden her heart. She was shocked, indignant when, after she had recited the unfaithfulness of the culprit in having half a dozen loves, Myrtle Dayton burst into a laugh that seemed cruel mockery.

"Oh, you little simpleton!" she cried. "Why, those pictures and notes were given by the police to Wilfred to write a story on. They were found on an adventurer who cut a wide swath in society in another city. I shall send Wilfred to you at once, and he will want to come."

A fair penitent, Rita Dwight received him with downcast eyes and humble mien. But Wilfred Dayton did not chide her. He simply told her how he loved her.

Paying What's Fair

THE average American is fair-minded. He prefers to pay his way and ask no favors.

People have no objection to paying the right price for a commodity once they know what the right price is.

The right price for gasoline is based first, on the cost of crude oil; second, on the cost of refining; and third, on the cost of distributing the refined product.

During the war prices were fixed by Governmental demand rather than by natural law.

The very low prices obtaining in 1915 were due to two causes—first, to ultra-conservatism due to uncertainty; second, to the spectacular production of oil in the Cushing fields, a production which dwindled almost as magically as it increased.

Since the Armistice the cost of every item entering into the production, refining, and distribution of petroleum products, has increased to an unprecedented degree. The production of crude petroleum has not kept pace with the demand. This has caused fierce competition for such crude oil as is obtainable. This competition has forced the price of crude oil until it is costing the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), f. o. b. Whiting, $4.30 a barrel, as against $2.92 on Nov. 11, 1918—an increase of 47 percent.

Yet in the same period gasoline advanced in price but 24 percent.

Only through the efficiency of large scale refinery practice and through advanced scientific processes of extracting an ever increasing percentage of gasoline from the crude oil, has the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) been able to hold gasoline prices down to present levels, and still yield a fair return to its 4799 stockholders.

It is generally conceded in the petroleum industry that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is operating on the closest margin possible.

CROSBY 7

Second Game with the Range Team was a Two to Two Tie Until the Seventh Inning

LEVERETTE A NEW PITCHER

Held the Range Men Until the Eighth When Lindahl's Home Run Pushed in Hill

Considering weather and roads, an exceptionally large crowd witnessed Brainerd and Crosby battling Sunday at Crosby, where Crosby defeated Brainerd 7 to 2.

Leverette, Brainerd's new pitcher succeeding Patterson, held the range team until the seventh inning when Lindahl traveled the circuit and pushed in Hill before him, breaking the 2 to 2 tie.

Many cars from Brainerd made the trip and the park was filled. It rained before and after the game.

Notes
Cook, in the second inning, drove a hot line drive to Anderson on third, who caught it in one hand, and made an exceptionally good stop and caught Cook at first.

Schmidt, the Crosby captain, used very abusive language in the sixth inning when Umpire Walter F. Kunitz called Wines safe stealing second.

Brainerd plays Crosby July 17 and 18 at Crosby on the occasion of the editors' convention. Brainerd will have to chalk up two victories to even up the score with Crosby.

The Earth's Crust.

Interesting facts concerning the earth's crust were disclosed by Col. Sir Sidney Burrard recently. "Isotasy" is the particular science which deals with the structure of the earth and Sir Sidney told how all mountains and heights standing above the sea level are compensated by deficiencies of matter underlying them below sea level, and that all oceans and surface hollows dipping below sea level are compensated by excesses of matter underlying them in the crust.

SOMEBODY GAINS
BY CONSTANT RAIN

Man Found at Last Who Says the Rainy Weather is Just to His Liking, Interview Given

TELLS STORY ON A GERMAN

W. S. Hewett Co. of Minneapolis Completing Erection of Cement Water Tower and Tank.

At last the Dispatch has found a man who says this rainy weather just suits him. He is no farmer and no shop man or business man, but the superintendent of the W. S. Hewett Co. of Minneapolis, now completing the erection of the cement water tower and tank near the depot.

The rainy weather with cloudy skies is just furnishing the right temperature and best possible conditions for the proper curing of the cement structure.

Ransacking his memory for a story to parallel rainy conditions in Brainerd, Mr. O'Brien, superintendent on the cement job, said:

"Everybody, everything, even rainy weather, is good for something, but sometimes it's hard to find what a thing is good for. There was an old German community, so the story goes, which never buried a man unless something good could be said about him. For years the tradition had been lived up to and burials were never retarded until one day an old codger died, disliked by every one."

"For two weeks there was no funeral, and it looked as though the board of health was about to act on the case and upset the traditions of the community until one old citizen came forward and saved the day by stating the deceased was a good smoker."

"With this one point to his credit the funeral proceeded."

"In like manner this Brainerd weather has one point to its credit, it's slowly curing the cement in the tower," said Mr. O'Brien in conclusion.

RED MAN'S MARRIAGE
LAW IS NOT SUFFICIENT

Grand Rapids, Wis., June 28—Four Indians of the Winnebago tribe landed in justice court as a result of a disagreement with the white man's marriage laws, and two of them, Chas. Lowe and Sue Eagle, residents of Wood county, are in jail awaiting hearings.

William Decorah and Maggie Boyce, the first pair hailed into court claimed that they were married. Decorah having informed the bride's parents of the fact, and then having the leader of the tribe, announce it. He decided, however, to appear July 1 and be married according to Wisconsin laws.

Charlie Lowe met Sue Eagle, said he loved her and the feeling being mutual they declared themselves married. The marriage was not announced by the tribe and no record made of it.

Atmosphere Above Earth's Surface.

The atmosphere is believed to extend much more than 100 miles above the earth's surface. Its density decreases rapidly for the first few miles of ascent, then much more gradually. From the phenomena of twilight, due to refraction of light, it may be demonstrated that the air extends up to a height of 45 miles; but other phenomena, such as the behavior of meteors and the aurora, show that rare air exists at a much greater height.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out. They weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy; full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-checked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

MC ADOO WILL WIN IN FIVE BALLOTS IT IS PREDICTED

ADMINISTRATION CROWN PRIZE SLATED TO BE EASY VICTOR
BY HIS SUPPORTERS

FIRST BALLOT EXPECTED TO BE AS FOLLOWS: PALMER 300,
McADOO 275, COX 200
HAROLD JACOBS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

San Francisco, June 28—As the democrats meeting in quadrennial sessions today, there was every evidence that a group of independent delegates had planned to seize the bit in their teeth and run away with the convention so far as selection of a presidential nominee was concerned.

If this program is carried out successfully, McAdoo, despite his formal withdrawal from the race, will be nominated with the sixth ballot. The most optimistic McAdoo enthusiasts predict his nomination on the fourth.
Seasoned political observers, immune to political mirages and other phenomena, have agreed that the main thing standing in the way of McAdoo's victory has been lack of co-ordination among his supporters.
His friends however expect to complete effective organizations within a few hours.

Indications today are that the "first division" of the committee in the initial ballot are considering Attorney General Palmer, Wm. McAdoo and Governor James Cox in order named.
Palmer is expected to poll possibly 300 votes, McAdoo 275, and Cox 200.

The "second division" apparently comprising Governor Edward I. Edwards and Governor Alfred E. Smith, are scheduled to develop about 100 votes each.

McAdoo's friends are counting on nearly 600 votes at present with only 729 necessary for choice. Former Congressman Carlin, Palmer's manager, predicted today that his candidate would win within five ballots.

McAdoo Boom Gains Impetus.

San Francisco, June 28—The movement to nominate Wm. McAdoo gained additional impetus today through several occurrences before the democratic national convention opened today.

Several cabinet officials openly began campaigning for the former secretary of the treasury after the report spread that President Wilson had let it be known that McAdoo was his choice. Supporters of Attorney General Palmer fought frantically to get a denial from the White House.

Among members of the presidential official family to begin to pass the word that "McAdoo is the man," were Postmaster Burleson, Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby and Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith. The latter is a candidate for the nomination, but regarded as a likely selection for the vice-presidency.

Fight Over Platform Planks

Will be Carried to Convention

San Francisco, June 28—The fight over the democratic platform will begin today in dead earnest with meeting of the resolutions committee which will write party declarations showing principles for presentation to the convention. Every indication is that on two and perhaps three questions, the fight will be carried from the resolutions committee onto the convention floor. The wet and dry and the league of nations issues may also cause debate there.

The first clash between the forces and supporters of the Wilson administration and those opposing it, was expected to come in the selection of the chairman of the resolutions committee, scheduled to occur late today.
Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia,
the administration choice for chairman, appeared early today to have won out over Senator Walsh of Montana, for the place.

Philippines Ask Independence Plank

San Francisco, June 28—Insertion of a plank in the democratic platform favoring immediate Philippine independence, will be asked by a delegation of Philipinos, Jaime C. De Vey-ra, resident commissioner of the Philippines in the United States, announced today.

Texas Repudiates Burleson

San Francisco, June 28—The Texas delegation passed a resolution declaring Postmaster General Burleson's alleged statement favoring light wines and beer, was only his personal view.

KEEPS YOUR KITCHEN COOL IN SUMMER!

The triple-walled oven, the insulated oven door, the liberal use of asbestos insulation (double the quantity used in other high-grade ranges) and the entire design of the Round Oak Chief Range are calculated to hold heat in where it belongs. The kitchen comfort that it affords a woman in hot weather, as a result, is well worth the slight extra cost of these advantages.

ROUND OAK CHIEF BOILER IRON RANGE

This range has many other advantages, as you would expect of anything made by the famous Round Oak Folks.
